

New Zealand Basketball Tours

welcome

New Zealand is truly one of the most picturesque and photogenic places on earth. As a small nation, similar in size to Great Britain or Japan, but with a population of just over 4.5 million people, it's gloriously uncrowded.

New Zealand is made up of two major land masses, the North Island and South Island, and a number of smaller islands. It is located approximately 1,500km east of Australia and about 1,000km from the Pacific Islands.

what's not to love

New Zealand is made up of some of the world's most spectacular landscapes, from vast mountain ranges, steaming volcanoes to sweeping white sand coastlines.

New Zealand's friendly and down-to-earth people (aka Kiwis) are one of the things people treasure most about their NZ visit. With a patchwork history of Māori, European, Pacific Island and Asian cultures, New Zealand has become a melting-pot population, with some unifying features that make it unique in the world.

Things people might not know about New Zealand:

- Unlike Australia, New Zealand does not have any dangerous or poisonous animals (with the one tiny exception of the Katipo Spider)
- In NZ you will hear the word “Kiwi” quite a lot – on the one hand there is the native flightless bird and the Kiwi Fruit but on the other hand it is also what we call a New Zealander
- New Zealand was the first major nation in the world to give women the right to vote
- Auckland is the largest Polynesian city in the world and is also known as “the city of sails”. It has more boats per capita than anywhere else in the world
- Wellington, the Capital City of New Zealand, is the southernmost capital city in the world
- New Zealand was the last major landmass to be populated (with the exception of the polar regions)
- Sir Edmund Hillary – the first man to reach the peak of Mount Everest was a New Zealander and his face is on the NZ $5 bill
